The Return of Sherlock Holmes Adventure XXXII – The Adventure of the Priory School

Someone kidnapped the Duke's little son.
Maybe gypsies – could be anyone.
Holmes followed the track
And got the boy back!
"All this money! Oh, Watson, what fun!"

Sandy Kozinn

A missing teacher and pupil cause no flutter
The authorities think he went to see his mudder
Holmes notes the tracks of many cows
But the absence of patties does arouse
Because you can't have one without the udder

Karen Olson

Doctor Huxtable fell on our rug,
And he was such a very big lug,
We gave a big sigh,
And just let him lie,
But we gave him some brandy to chug.

Bill Dorn

The Duke's son is absconded from school
The kidnappers use fake cow shoes to fool
Holmes judges the bike's tires
Everyone is liars
All flee justice, but Hayes for a crime cruel
