THE RETURN OF
 SHERLOCK HOLMES.
 By A. CONAN DOYLE.
 XII.—The Adventure of the Abbey Grange.

Copyright, 1904, by A. Conan Doyle, in the United States of America.

HI was on a bitterly cold and frosty morning during the winter of '97 that I was awakened by a tugging at my shoulder. "It was Holmes. The candle in his hand shone upon his eager, stooping face and told me at a glance that something was amiss. "Come, Watson, come!" he cried. "The game is afoot. Not a word! Into your clothes and come!"

Ten minutes later we were both in a cab and rattling through the silent streets on our way to Charing Cross Station. The first faint winter's dawn was beginning to appear, and we could dimly see the occasional figure of an early workman as he passed us, blurred and indistinct in the opalescent London haze. Holmes nestled in silence into his heavy coat, and I was glad to do the same, for the air was most bitter and neither of us had broken our fast. It was not until we had consumed some hot tea at the station, and taken our places in the Kentish train, that we were sufficiently thawed, he to speak and I to listen. Holmes drew a note from his pocket and read it aloud—

 "Abbey Grange, Marsham, Kent,
 "8:30 a.m.
 "My DEAR MR. HOLMES,—I should be very glad of your immediate assistance in what promises to be a most remarkable case. It is something quite in your line. Except for releasing the lady I will see that everything is kept exactly as I have found it, but I beg you not to lose an instant, as it is difficult to leave Sir Eustace there.
 "Yours faithfully, STANLEY HOPEKES."
 "Hopkins has called me in seven times, and on each occasion his summons has been entirely justified," said Holmes. "I
