His Last Bow

Adventure XLVI – The Adventure of the Dying Detective

(Rework of Matilda's work)

It seemed Holmes had a foot in the grave

And his life they [all] wanted to save.

"[Find] a doctor [who sees]

[A cure for the disease]" –

[If the patient's] sufficiently brave.

Sandy Kozinn

Mrs. Hudson told Watson that Holmes' end was near

Watson tried to examine him in spite of his fear

Smith came to witness the end and to brag of his guilt

But was arrested and Watson saw the case built

Later they went to Simpson's to get chips and beer

Karen Olson

A vile man was one Culverton Smith,

He was not one to be trifled with,

But Holmes faked an illness,

Causing Smith to confess,

Murder charges 'gainst him were no myth.

Bill Dorn

Holmes has contracted a rare disease

For his wish, Watson he does displease

Only Smith may give aid

His plans Holmes finally stayed

Holmes' entire illness simply a tease
